Resource for Policy Owners

To ensure University-wide consistency in the formulation, review, approval, and implementation of policies, the Policy Library has provided a resource section for policy owners. It helps answer questions such as:

- Is this a policy or procedure?
- What is the process I should use to develop a policy?
- How do I write a policy?
- Is my policy a unit policy or a UO policy statement?

Interested in what policies are being developed?

The Policy Library contains a log listing the status of policies being developed or updated.

The Policy Library Provides:

- An online central location and reference point for University of Oregon policies and procedures.
- An online handbook (OHMAC) for managerial, administrative, and clerical employees.
- Links to UO sites where you can find policies, practices, procedures and guidelines that relate to matters of interest particular to UO Units. Units include individual schools, colleges, centers, departments, or other UO organizations.
- A growing resource. If you know of other links relevant to faculty, staff, or students, let us know by notifying the Policy Library’s Program Manager at kathyw@uoregon.edu

Our goal is to provide easy access to institutional policies, rules, practices, and procedures.

Online Handbook for Managerial, Administrative, and Clerical Employees

OHMAC is a centralized link site that allows users to find the information they need to complete daily clerical and administrative tasks without having to know how the UO is organized or search website after website.

GOVERNMENTAL RULES

The Policy Library provides links to the Oregon University System and to Oregon Administrative Rules. Both sites contain rules which contribute to the operation and administration of the University of Oregon.
What is a UO Policy Statement?

Any document which contains rules or principles which promotes the University of Oregon's effectiveness in the management and operation of the institution is considered a University of Oregon Policy Statement and will be housed in the Policy Library. Policy Statements have a wide-range reach and affect the entire University. University of Oregon Policy Statements meet at least one of the following criteria:

- Seeks to ensure compliance with applicable laws, regulations, and standards;
- Has broad application or impact throughout the University across Colleges, Schools and administrative units; or
- Promotes consistency, operational efficiency, enhancement of the University's mission and/or mitigates significant institutional risk.

A great resource for finding information is OHMAC. It is a list of topics with links to various University of Oregon websites. If you can't find what you are looking for, let us know by emailing the Policy Library Program Manager at kathyw@uoregon.edu.
